

Proportion Emergency
Sub Teachers

Teacher Hiring

The distribution of student teaching in the state may have implications for the ability of districts to recruit teachers. As shown below, areas of the state with that host fewer student teachers also tend to have more emergency substitute teachers than areas of the state that host more student teachers.

Source: Data provided by Washington State Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Teacher Credentialing Office.